Welcome to The Legal and Ethical Game Show Challenge. Our purpose is, stimulate our minds, review legal and ethical material, test our knowledge, discuss, learn, and, most importantly, have fun! Audience participants are broken into teams that compete for bragging rights to who has the most legal and ethical knowledge. Legal and ethical questions are presented in varying formats and team answers are sent through electronic means to a computer that automatically keeps score. The questions are often provocative and are designed to review, challenge, and teach. Many questions are designed to tackle areas not typically addressed in legal and ethical trainings. So, sit back, relax, and make new friends while participating in the most stimulating legal and ethical training you will ever attend. Please note that all material is copyrighted and questions are not available for public dissemination.

Fees Paid for Provocative Legal and Ethical Questions!

I am always interested in finding stimulating legal and ethical questions. If you have an interesting, favorite legal and ethical question that you believe would be appropriate for use in this training, I will pay $10.00 for each question used. Questions must be applicable across all guild's codes and state laws or worded in such a manner that they address differences across all codes and laws. Question must be able to be worded such that they have a definitive right or wrong answer. Questions that have exceptions to answers are not acceptable. Please email to me at the address above.

Fees Paid for Seminar Referrals

If you know of an organization that could benefit from this training, I will gladly pay a 5% referral fee if your lead results in the training being presented. Simply provide as much of the information below as you can so that contact can be made.
